

BRER GROUNDHOG SAW HIS SHADOW; EXPECT MORE COLD

Six Weeks of Winter Yet to Come Because Sun Shines on Candlemas Day.

Farewell, a fond farewell, to all vain hopes that Old Man Winter might be caught napping on this significant Candlemas day. As clearly etched as a steel engraving, the Ground Hog saw his shadow this noon, unless, perchance, he was blind or failed to get the sun in back of him. Of course, there is a bare chance that a whiff of the chilly air stole into his burrow, he simply rolled over and refused to leave his bed, but the nature fakers of the middle ages concocted a tale that he never fails to make a trip outdoors on Candlemas day, and the tale has stuck through the years. There wasn't any question about the shadow. The sun was bright and rich in its golden epiphany, dispensing light while it gave precious little warmth.

Six Weeks of Winter.
And the tradition is that the be-shadowed ground hog turns right back into his lair for another six weeks hibernation when he sees the tell-tale sign. Which is another way of saying that winter is going to stage some real cold weather before spring comes.

The history of Ground Hog day is interesting. Not so many years ago, it was February 1, in most parts of the United States, but within the last quarter of a century it has been changed to February 2. In some sections the controversy as to the right date has not been settled yet. For centuries the weather conditions on this date have been supposed to govern the following six weeks.

Scientists Are Scoffers.
In England and Scotland Candlemas day is rich in tradition, and a proverb has it that, if the day be cloudy and gloomy, winter is practically over; while if it be bright and fair, "the half of winter's to come and mail."

Of course, science-spelled with a capital S—personally conducted by the cold and critical meteorologists, has scoffed at the ground hog idea for a good many years. Nevertheless, the ground hog never goes further astray in his annual venture in forecasting than a certain well-known forecaster does at critical moments, especially—but that's another story altogether.

Preparations for making all United States paper money smaller have been completed by the Treasury Department which has been working on the matter for several months. All bills will be reduced one-third in size. The design for the back of the notes was drawn by Kenyon Cox, of New York, and accepted by Secretary of the Treasury MacVeagh some months ago.

The designs are simple and artistic, according to Treasury officials, and consist of allegorical figures representing "America," "Peace," "Plenty," "Liberty," and "Commerce." A vignette of Washington will adorn the face of the $1 note.

NOTED PASTORS TO VISIT ALEXANDRIA

Dedication-Ceremonies of New Westminster Building Will Attract Former Preachers and Widely Known Laymen. Committees in Charge of Services Announced.

WASHINGTON TIMES BUREAU, ALEXANDRIA, VA., FEB. 2.

At the conclusion of the service of the Second Presbyterian Church this morning, Rev. John L. Allison, pastor of the church, announced the committees who will have charge of the dedication ceremonies of the new Westminster building, as follows: Music, George B. Kennedy and P. J. Dempsey; entertainment, F. L. Daymaker and D. Moxley Low; program and speakers, William Campbell and A. C. Uhler.

The dedication of the building will be one of the most important events in Alexandria church circles for many years. The date has not been definitely announced, but it is expected that the building is not completed but it will occur during the first week in March. The services will extend over three days and a number of prominent preachers and laymen are expected to attend. It is expected that all former pastors of the Second Presbyterian Church who are living will come to Alexandria to take part.

The Westminster building, a handsome three-story brick building at the corner of Prince and Asaph streets, is rapidly nearing completion. It will contain the Sunday school and department of religious social work of the church. In the basement there will be a modern gymnasium. Its cost is $40,000.

Seminole Tribe, No. 5, Improved Order of Red Men, will hold their annual church services tonight at Grace Episcopal Church, when Rev. Edgar Carpenter, rector of the church and chaplain of the lodge, will preach a sermon appropriate to the occasion. The committee in charge of the arrangements is composed of Conway C. Brawner, C. H. May, and Roger C. Sullivan.

In the circuit court of Fairfax yesterday afternoon Howard Gasika, colored, charged with murder of his wife, was sentenced to serve eighteen years in the penitentiary. Gasika pleaded guilty and related to the court a story of how the murder was committed. According to his version he killed his wife on a road near Vienna, following a quarrel about another man. He buried the body in a shallow grave and made his escape.

Verdon Ford, commonwealth attorney, opposed the entering of the plea of guilty, but was overruled and the jury dismissed.

The next two days will be busy ones in social circles in Alexandria, for practically every hour from tomorrow afternoon until midnight Tuesday is engaged for some social entertainment. Lent is very generally observed here owing to the large number of Episcopalians and Catholics. One of the most important of the public entertainments will be the dance and buffet supper which will be given at the Elks Auditorium Tuesday night.

JANUARY WEATHER MADE NEW RECORD

Missed Setting New Mark for Highest Temperatures by Bare Fraction of Degree.

The sunny, benignant month of January just ended almost established a new record for the weather sharp to shoot at in future years. It missed immortality by two-tenths of a degree. The mean average temperature for the month was 43.6 degrees, while the January of 1899 reached a mark of 43.9 degrees. No other month in the records of the Washington Weather Bureau comes near to touching these two records of spring-like, balmy temperatures.

However, the present winter, in its ensemble effect of mildness and pleasant weather, is in a class by itself, according to the chronological division of Professor Moore's establishment. November and December were almost as extraordinary months as January. That the popular impression that a winter opening late will stay late is not scientific, is also an utterance of the Weather Bureau. "There is no basis for this idea in fact," they say, "although it is quite possible that the coming spring will be long delayed. But this is entirely a matter of chance. It will not depend on the fact that the first three months of alleged winter have not been winter at all."

The present range of temperature can be attributed to the fact that the high pressure of the upper atmosphere moved decidedly southward the past fall. All the winds came from high pressure areas, so that all these months have been southerly. They have never had a chill in them.

Poisonous Tablets Are Dangerous

In every household you will find among the toilet necessities some sort of a germicide, in the form of either a tablet, solution or powder. Many of these antiseptic preparations contain poisons. The name of an absolutely harmless antiseptic powder, as compared with a poisonous tablet or solution, is apparent to every one, and that is one reason why physicians everywhere have strongly recommended Tyro's Antiseptic Powder. Dissolves instantly in water. A 25-cent package of one of the best standard solutions. Sold by druggists everywhere. Send for booklet and free sample.
